VI. Lesson Learnt and Experiences

The followings are the lessons learnt and experiences COMFREL has had after implementing its program activities at both the national and local grassroots levels:

-First outline and table content will benefit each unit to produce quarterly and annual reports.

-COMFREL just have case studies and stories of change in the text, but after attending Impact Survey and Story of Change training with Oxfam Novib, it observed that COMFREL could use those tools to produce story of change in video.

-video projection for sessions of training is very effective in youth forums in the provinces.

-To gain more effective result to produce the directory, an out-of-date operational system must be changed to "InDesign".

-To collect the information of the MPs' field visit, Facebook is likely more effective and a faster tool.

-Collecting data regarding women issues in the provinces by provincial secretariats, COMFREL should remind them often and collect data every quarter.

-It is more effective to mobilize youth to participate in round-table discussion by sending a formal letter to youth representatives or meeting directly.

-To be more effective in participation, COMFREL needs to work with both youth and older people.

-To encourage audiences to follow COMFREL's Facebook and Twitter pages, COMFREL needs to update its page regularly. It must make sure that this shared information is attractive and short but meaningful. In fact/reality/currently, there are more than 20 accounts regularly tick "like" on COMFREL's Facebook page daily because of regular updates.

Back-up systems from computer drives to online storage (Google Drive or Drop box) will avoid loss of data.

-Narrow topics in small round-table discussion meetings in the province will give more time and space for participants to have more in-depth discussions.
